

Requesting international support for Victims of Post Election Violence in their quest for justice

The International Center for Policy and Conflict in partnership with other Civil Society Organizations would like to request for sustained international support for the on going efforts to secure justice and compensation for the countless victims of Kenya's December 2007 Post Election Violence.

The Center is currently engaged in projects that seek to inform and mobilize Kenyans on issues such as the Special Tribunal for Kenya Bill; and the Truth, Justice and Reconciliation Commission.

Currently, we are organizing Public Readings of the Bill in various regions and have had our first and very successful one in Eldoret. Furthermore, we have had successful meetings with religious leaders, educating them on the Bill and have had them pledge their support for it.

We are seeking to stress the clause of victim compensation in the Bill and to continue the fight to end impunity in Kenya.
